WHAT I DO DIFFERENTLY

The Relaunch Plan

Step by step, what my team and I do with a luxury home that didn't sell the first time, what it costs you up front (nothing), and exactly what you'll hear from me every week.

The relaunch plan

I don't relist a home that didn't sell. Relisting means the same photos, the same reach, and a lower price. I relaunch it, which means we start over on purpose. Here is the plan in writing, so you can hold me to it and so you can compare it line by line with anyone else who calls.

1 The walk-through

Forty-five minutes at your home, with you. I'm looking at what a buyer will see in the first ninety seconds: the approach, the entry, the light, the kitchen, the outdoor living. You'll leave with a short list of what to stage, what to update, and what to leave exactly as it is. Most sellers spend money on the wrong list. I'd rather you didn't spend it at all.

2 The number

My team and I build your valuation from closed luxury sales in the last 90 days, adjusted for your lot, your view, your finishes, and your acreage if you have it. We don't let a website or an AI tool price your home. You get the three closest comparable sales and where your home wins or loses against each one. We price to bring the strongest buyer in the first two weeks, not to leave room to come down.

3 The reset

- Twilight and daytime photography, drone, and a cinematic video walk-through
- Floor plans and virtual staging for any empty room
- Staging and the short list of updates from the walk-through
- A pre-inspection, so we fix the small things now and nothing blows up in escrow
- For acreage: well, septic, and defensible-space paperwork gathered before launch, because buyers here will ask

4 The launch

Your home doesn't just reappear on the MLS one Tuesday. It launches. We pick the date around the market and your move-out plans. Two weeks before, my buyer list and the top luxury and relocation agents in the region see it privately. Week one is a broker preview and private showings, not a public open house. Ads run where our buyers come from: the Bay Area, Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix, and Reno, and the eXp Luxury network puts it in front of agents nationwide.

5 The weekly update

You hear from me on a schedule we agree on before launch: showings, what buyers said, online traffic, and the next move. Decision points are set before launch so a price change is a decision we make together, never the default.

WHEN	WHAT WE LOOK AT	WHAT CAN CHANGE
Week 2	Views, saves, showing requests, broker feedback	Photo order, copy, ad targeting
Week 4	Showings vs. offers, feedback themes	Presentation fixes, price position
Week 8	Is the buyer pool exhausted or not	Price move, incentive, or relaunch timing
Week 12	Full reset review	New photography, new number, or pause until spring

The calendar

TIMING	WHAT HAPPENS	WHO
Week -4	Walk-through, valuation, plan agreed in writing	Cindy + you
Weeks -3 to -2	Updates, staging, pre-inspection, acreage paperwork	My team schedules it
Week -1	Photography, video, drone, floor plans; private preview to buyers and agents	My team
Launch	Live on MLS and luxury portals; ads on; broker preview	Cindy
On schedule	Your update call	Cindy, personally

What I won't do

- Relist with the same photos and a lower price and call it a strategy.
- Go quiet. You will always know what happened this week and what comes next.
- Let a website guess price your home.
- Put a sign in the yard and wait.

The plan is only worth something if it's written down before you sign. Ask every agent for theirs. Here's mine.

— CINDY

A listing puts your home in front of whoever happens to be looking. A relaunch puts it in front of the people who should be.

A little about me: I'm a luxury listing specialist with eXp Luxury, and I ran businesses before real estate, which is why my plan is always in writing. My team and I work Placer, Sacramento, and El Dorado Counties, from Granite Bay and El Dorado Hills to Loomis, Auburn, Folsom, and East Sacramento, and homes that didn't sell the first time are a big part of what we do. You will get a straight answer from me, in writing, before you sign anything.
